

I painted some stones on the bank with acrylics.

Final touches are some washes with greens. I blended the paint by adding more water or more paint.

I emphasized some leaves with a light green shade and then with a darker wash.

Finally, I emphasized some textures with a dry paint brush using artist oils.

It's important to clean the paintbrush well so as not to damage the previous work.

I applied the dry brushing with a flat brush on the high points of the ground work.

Now I start with the resin. The dam was secured with tape and glued.
